“Art Based Approach to Trauma”

Andrea Marie Davis is a Board Certified Art Therapist and Licensed Professional Counselor Supervisor. She has a private practice in Dallas, Texas. She specializes in art therapy with clients who have experienced trauma, dissociation, foster care / post adoption and medical issues. She earned her Bachelor of Arts in Phenomenological Psychology at the University of Dallas and has a Masters of Arts degree in Humanistic Psychology from the University of West Georgia. Andrea finished her post graduate work at the Art Therapy Institute and University of Dallas. She has been in practice for eleven + years.

Andrea has dedicated herself to advancing the profession of art therapy. She recently worked for Children's Health Psychiatric, Day Treatment and SPARC programs. Andrea ardently supports community projects to educate the public about the role of the art therapist. She has published and appeared on NPR and a national cable television to showcase the benefits of art therapy in mental healthcare. She is finishing up work on a short documentary that features story cloth making. Most recently she has launched a nonprofit, Dallas Art Therapy, to provide art therapy services to the underserved.

She has served on the board for North Texas Art Therapy Association as President, Vice President, and Treasurer. She is currently serving as a member of the ATCB exam committee.
